

MASTER IN EDUCATION (MEd) Major TECHNOLOGY and HOME ECONOMICS (THE)

Program Description

This is a non-thesis program designed to train elementary and secondary teachers in handling Technology and Home Economics. The courses are directed towards a practical pedagogical application of the theoretical principles derived from the field of organization and management of Technology and livelihood programs, food preparation, clothing construction and craft design.

Program Educational Objectives

1. Exhibit deeper understanding and appreciation directed towards a practical pedagogical appreciation of the various principles and theories related to livelihood programs;
2. Create a correction, locally and globally in the proper utilization of technology;
3. Commit to personal and collective action for social innovation and transformation; and
4. Use appropriate information technology to real life situations.